From basketball to cross-country

By ERRIKKA BRANSCUM
Staff Reporter

The women's cross country team has finished ninth place and fourth place in its first two meets, led by two returners and a set of twins who wore a different Bulldog uniform their first four years.

Chelsey Hickey and Taylor Scott, who earned second-team all-conference honors last year, have led the team so far. Cross-country season began Sept. 7 at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond. Dillon finished first among the Bulldogs coming in 59th place overall. Scott and Emily Hickey finished very close together taking 74th and 75th places. Right ahead of Scott and Hickey, finishing 71st and 72nd, were MaRiah and SaRaya Oyler.

The twins from Beaver spent their first four years playing basketball, but have recently transitioned into cross-country.

"My transition from basketball to cross-country has definitely been an eye-opener [in] realizing how different athletes can train their bodies," MaRiah Oyler said.

MaRiah said there are major differences between basketball and cross-country.

"Cross country is more of an individual and mental sport and basketball is more of a team sport," she said, "One huge difference to me is that you don't get timeouts in cross-country."

"For me transitioning from [basketball] was

MaRiah Oyler

SaRaya Oyler really just a mental thing. Cross country is all guts!" says teammate and sister SaRaya Oyler.

The Oyler sisters have different opinions on the differences from basketball to cross country,

CAMPUS GOES ON LOCKDOWN

By SKYLAR SPRADLIN
News Editor

One week ago on Tuesday, Sept. 24, SWOSU went on lockdown, along with Weatherford Public Schools and other institutions around Weatherford after a van with eight inmates was overtaken by two of the inmates, who temporarily escaped.

For nearly two hours, the campus was in lockdown mode. Several vehicles, including physical plant vans, were used to block entrances into campus. Campus police sent out an alert via text. All buildings were locked, and people were not permitted to enter or leave buildings or the campus. As the situation unfolded, text and e-mail from the police and SWOSU administration updated students, faculty and staff on the situation.

In the early afternoon, a prisoner transport van headed for Nashville, Tenn., pulled over at Weatherford Regional Hospital because one inmate complained of feeling ill. While the guards were in the hospital, two inmates broke through the partition between the front and back of the van. The keys were still in the van, so the inmates drove away from the hospital with six other inmates still shackled in the back of the van.

Eventually, the two inmates in the front seat decided to park the van on Lyle Road and take their chances on foot. One of the six inmates left shackled in the back of the van made a 911 call to Weatherford Police Department to report the drive-off.

He was unable to describe to the dispatcher where he was since he was unfamiliar with Weatherford. He eventually left the van and walked near Lyle Road until he saw a SWOSU Park Ranger. The Ranger confirmed to the dispatcher that he had located the van with the other five inmates.

At 3:30 p.m., the search was still on for the two inmates who had escaped on foot.

Once the police believed they had the two inmates contained to an area of Weatherford just off of Lyle Road, they allowed the schools, including SWOSU, to lift the lock downs.

At 3:40 p.m. the police sent an officer to all the public school buildings and lifted the lockdown so

Six bodies found in Foss Lake

By JESSE RANGE
Staff Reporter

In a discovery that shocked local residents and gained worldwide attention, police officers found six bodies in two different cars in Foss Lake on Sept. 17.

Foss Lake is located near Clinton, 15 miles west of Weatherford.

The police were testing underwater sonar equipment when they spotted cars on the screen. They quickly got them out and started to examine the vehicles.

They pulled out two very rusty cars — a 1969 Camaro and a 1952 Chevrolet Sedan. These two vehicles may solve two long-unsolved disappearances.

that parents could reunite with their children.

The manhunt went on until the six o'clock hour when a Weatherford citizen spotted the inmates in the back yard of the house he was trying to sell in the 1200 block of Chestnut Place.

He quickly called the police and by 6:18 p.m. the two inmates had been captured.

Weatherford Police department had a press conference to thank all emergency response teams that assisted the city in the hunt for the two inmates.

The agencies represented were: Weatherford Police Department, Weatherford Fire Department, Hydro Police Department, Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, Oklahoma Highway Patrol, Bureau of Indian Affairs, and Washita, Custer, and Beckham County Sheriff Departments. When asked how valuable the help was in capturing the inmates Assistant Police Chief Louis Flowers said, "We couldn't have done it without the surrounding areas."

City officials said the city of Weatherford will contact the prisoner transport company to cover the expenses of the manhunt.

fits a description of a cold case of three missing teenagers. In 1970 a teen named Jimmy Williams was on his way to a football game with two friends Thomas Rios and Leah Johnson. They were in a 1969 Camaro when they mysteriously disappeared.

The 1952 Sedan also may hold the remains of John Porter. They won't know for sure if this is what happened until DNA results come back, which could takes 6 months to a year.

Students were surprised by the discovery. student "I've swam in that lake and to think there may have been bodies right under my feet is a little frightening," student Kevin Holloway said.

Prisoners

SCOTT MAY
Staff Reporter

How far would you go for your family?

Keller Dover discovers how far he would go after his daughter is abducted from their suburban street in the drama "Prisoners," in theaters now.

Along with his daughter, one of her friends is also taken. Desperate for answers, the families turn to the police, who find little to go on.

As the search begins for the missing girls, a suspect is found - a suspect who Dover is sure to be responsible for the disappearance of the girls.

When police claim there is little they can do to make an arrest, Dover takes matters into his own hands and slides into a darker, grittier version of his old self. As his family's stability crumbles without his youngest child, Dover will stop at nothing to find his daughter.

Opposite Dover is Detective Loki, played by Jake Gyllenhaal. Loki has never taken a case he hasn't solved. He is charged with the task of finding the girls and bringing them home, but with little evidence and police procedure to get in the way, hours of searching turn to days, and the pressure mounts.

The crime thriller is sure to keep suspense seekers on their toes, though the action lovers may be left wanting more. "Prisoners" is first and foremost a drama, and there is plenty of it. All the ingredients are there for a great crime story: a hot-shot cop with something to prove, a father who would go to the edge of sanity for his family and a variety of suspects to keep the audience guessing.

The story is unique in that, unlike most films, the character growth of the protagonist (Dover) is negative. He is falling into a darker state, getting weaker without his family around him. As the film goes on the audience almost forgets whom they are supposed to root for. Loki offers little likable characteristics leaving the film without a true "good guy."

Overall, the film's acting is one of its shining achievements. Both Jackman and Gyllenhaal offer great performances, but it was the supporting roles such as Paul Dano who really sealed the deal. Dano plays suspect Alex Jones, who has a child-level I.Q.

If you love suspense and crime thrillers, "Prisoners" might be right up your dark alley, but if you are looking for high octane action, the two and a half hour drama may be a little slow for you.

Boomtown Grill is a good choice for whatever you are craving. They serve hamburgers, salmon, salads and steaks, and yummy desserts.

They are open Monday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Boomtown Grill has great service and great tasting food. It isn't just a grill but it's also a bar.

Their service is fast but they also make sure it's right and fresh. If you order a steak the chef will personally bring it out to you and have you cut into it and make sure it's what you ordered.

I had the chicken fried steak with mash potatoes and gravy and the chicken fried steak wasn't too tender or too tough and had a great taste. Their french fries are salted and seasoned just right and their mash potatoes are really good too.

For more information you can call Boomtown Grill at (580) 774-5233.

Bulldogs take a bite out of Arkansas-Monticello

Improve to 3-1

A career game for Ryan Corbin and an unforgettable evening for Dustin Stenta highlighted the Southwestern Oklahoma State University football team's 35-17 victory over Arkansas-Monticello on Saturday night at Fast Lane Field.

Corbin caught nine passes for 158 yards while adding the two rushing touchdowns – in the only two rushing attempts of his career – for the Bulldogs. His longest reception of the night, a 59-yarder from Stenta early in the fourth quarter, moved Stenta atop the career passing list at SWOSU.

Stenta surpassed his quarterback coach Steve Day's mark of 7,482 yards in the midst of his 343-yard passing performance. On the Bulldogs next drive, Stenta connected with Brian Robinson for a 45-yard touchdown, which moved broke Day's record of 46 career touchdown passes. Stenta has current career marks of 7,612 yards and 47 touchdown passes.

It was Stenta that got the scoring started for the Bulldogs, capping off a nine-play, 94-yard drive midway through the first quarter with a 32-yard touchdown run to give SWOSU the 7-0 lead. A quarterback change for UAM jump started the Boll Weevils, who scored 14 straight points and take a 14-7 lead with 10 minutes to play in the first half.

At the end of a 15-play, 65-yard drive, SWOSU debuted a new look down around the goal line. Corbin lined up at quarterback on first and goal from the seven yard line, took the snap and powered his way into the end zone for his first rushing touchdown in a Bulldog uniform. The TD run tied the game at 14-14 with 5:22 to play in the second quarter and the teams would head to the break with that score.

After the teams traded punts early in the second half, SWOSU started to flex their muscle against the Boll Weevils. Stenta connected with Teverick Boyd for a 70-yard touchdown pass which gave the Bulldogs the lead 21-14 with 3:56 to play in the third quarter. UAM closed the gap by three with a 38-yard field goal from Jamie McGee on the second play of the fourth quarter, making the score 21-17, but they would get no closer.

Stenta's record-breaking touchdown pass to Robinson with 11:00 to play in the game put SWOSU on top 28-17 and after forcing a Boll Weevil punt, the Dawgs put it away. SWOSU ran the ball nine times in a 10-play 86-yard drive which melted 4:29 off the clock. D.C. Walker carried the ball at least eight yards on the first five plays of the drive. After Stenta scrambled 19 yards and set the Bulldogs up at the one yard line, Corbin plunged in from one yard out to make it 35-17 with 4:39 to play.

Stenta finished 20-for-34 for 343 and two touchdowns and added 78 yards rushing. He had two receivers, Corbin and Boyd, cross the 100-yard plateau receiving after Boyd added four receptions for 111 yards and a touchdown. Walker carried the ball 18 times for 93 yards while Karl Hodge added 12 carries for 58 yards.

The SWOSU offense out-gained Arkansas-Monticello 587 to 310 with a commanding lead in rushing yards with 244. The Bulldogs defense limited UAM to just 84 yards on the ground and 226 through the air. The active SWOSU defense was led by Ryan Feller who made 13 tackles (two solo, 11 assist) and Cliff Nyagesiba and Steven Townsley who both finished with 10.

SWOSU had a season-high seven tackles for loss and got two sacks from Jacolby Robinson and one each from Tyler George and Jake Doyle.

SWOSU improves to 3-1 for the second time in the last three seasons and they have now won four consecutive games at Fast Lane Field.

That streak will be on the line next Saturday when the Bulldogs host unbeaten Ouachita Baptist at 2 pm. OBU improved to 3-0 with a 45-7 victory over Southeastern Oklahoma State on Saturday.

here SaRaya said, "[The] biggest changes for me are learning the difference in coaching styles, and the difference in the fan base."

However, when asked about twin rivalry, these sisters had close to the same answer. "SaRaya and I have always been competitive in everything we do. Even though we may compete and be each other's worst critic we are also each other's inspiration." MaRiah said.

"MaRiah and I have competed against each other in every aspect of life since we were born. We are super competitive... but we encourage each other just as much." Stated SaRaya.

Following the meet at the University of Central Oklahoma was the Tech Invitation, held in Russellville, Arkansas on the Arkansas Tech campus. Senior, Chelsey Dillon finish first among the bulldogs again, coming in 10th place overall. MaRiah and SaRaya Oyler finished 22nd and 23rd, and the team

The next meet for the cross-country team will be held at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, Arkansas on October 5.

SWOSU golf team works to match last year's talent

By CAMI LOVELESS

The Southwestern men's team, coming off its another successful season, has already participated in three tournaments this fall.

The team left town on Saturday to head to Sunriver, Ore., to play in the Golfweek Fall Invitational at Sunriver Resort.

Although the team has not performed at the same level it did last season, it is improving.

"I think we are going to have to play well to be as good as we were last year," freshman Brock Bell said. "We lost a couple key players. We haven't played to our potential just yet."

Jake Duvall and Tommy Stirling are the key returners from last year's team. They both earned Great American Conference honorable mention team selections last year.

Last year, the team finished second at the Great American Conference tournament and was selected to play in the NCAA Division II Championships for the first time in school history.

"The season has started off a little slow, but they are pretty young and are sorting through growing pains," Coach Brad Fleetwood said. "Last year was the best year in school history."

In this fall's GAC Men's Preview, the men came in 6th overall. Nicolas Cornu de Olmos was the leader for SWOSU, shooting a 72, good enough 4th place.

The second tournament was hosted at Broken Arrow, Okla. SWOSU placed ninth as a team.

Jake Duvall shot a 76 on the last day and shot 225 overall, earning himself a top 10 finish.

Tommy Stirling, who led the tournament after the second round, tied for 26th place. Cornu de Olmos finished with a total score of 232, good enough for 34th.

Brock Bell and Marques Gomez also competed for the Bulldogs.

"We have a very young, talented team this year after losing three starting seniors," junior Allan Shuford said.

"I think the potential is endless this year, the talent is there it just depends how hard we want to work."

The team's next event is the Central Regional Invitation in St. Joseph, Mo., on Oct. 14-15.

SWOSU Rodeo starts season off with a kick

By HANNAH HAUGEN

The Southwestern Bulldogs rodeo teams kicked off their season with a bang at Colby, Kansas Community College on Sept 20-22.

Both men and women's team ended up in the first place position when short go was over Sunday. The women's team ended up with 472.5 points, doubling that of the second place finisher Northwestern. The men's team rounded up 345 points to put them in the top spot.

Coach Mike Visnieski was happy with his team's performance.

"I was expecting solid performances from our athletes and they executed what we set out to do there," Visnieski said. "We were very pleased with the effort and hustle of both teams."

College rodeos begin with a long round, where everyone gets the opportunity to compete in their events. If they finish in the top 10 of their event they progress to the short go where they get an opportunity for short go and average points. The winner of the event is the person with the best time or score on a two-head average.

The women's team had a total of seven girls make it to the short go filling four spots in each of the three women's events; breakaway roping, goat tying, and barrel racing. Amy Outhier came out with a big win in the barrel racing, finishing first in the average, while Emily Miller, Ceri McCaffery, and Jacoby Hotsenpiller all made it back in two or more events to push the team into first place.

The men's team brought back six total to the short go in the events of saddle bronc riding, tie down roping, and bull riding. Sage Kimzey ended up 3rd in the average in the bull riding, winning the short go with an 81 point ride. Dalton Davis won first in the long go in the saddle bronc riding with a 71 point ride and finished 3rd in the average.

Visnieski looks forward to the next rodeo, "We look forward to being consistent in our performance and getting better," Visnieski said. The way these guys prepare, keep their horses healthy and working good, their attitudes, their focus and drive, make them an awesome group of people to work with and coach."

The Bulldogs next rodeo will be at Pratt Community College in Pratt, Kansas on Oct 4-6, where the teams look to continue their success.

Pro...

...crastination. If you haven't figured out yet, college isn't high school. Mom isn't here to make you do your homework, and the bus never comes to pick you up. It's up to you to wake up for those morning classes and (hopefully) take a shower. And ultimately, it's up to you to go to class. While it's a lot easier to always stay up playing video games or partying (and a heck of a lot more fun), it's not a smart decision. Remember: college is NOT high school. Not only will this affect your grades, it will affect your wallet. College is not free. You pay to be here, and to go to class. And whether you go or not, you still pay. And if you miss enough, you get to take the course again!

So next time you think about sleeping in, ask yourself: is this sleep worth $200?
